". . . . we must lift the sail
And catch the winds of destiny."

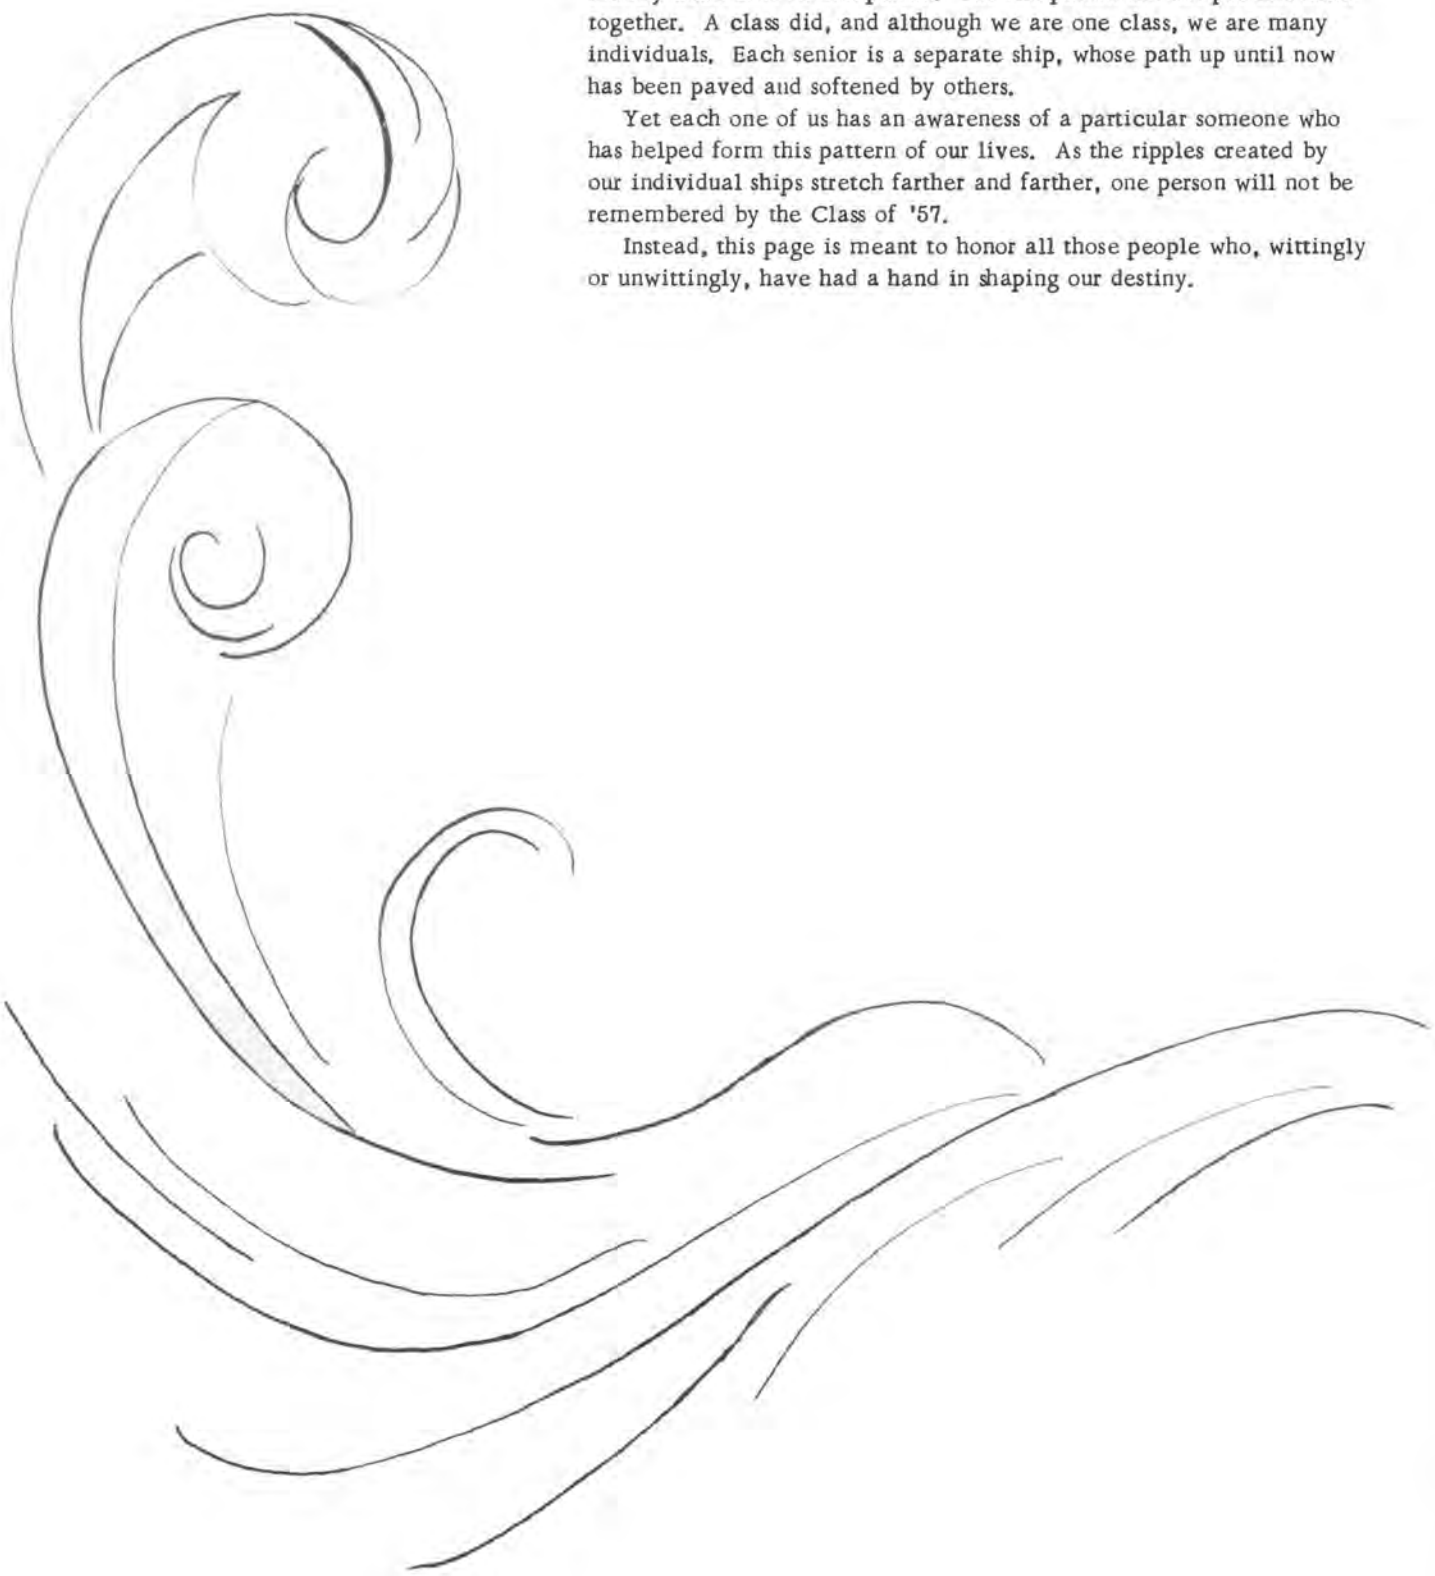
Pittsford Central School
Pittsford, New York

Dedication

A dedication is an attempt to accord special honor. Books are usually dedicated to one person. But one person did not put this book together. A class did, and although we are one class, we are many individuals. Each senior is a separate ship, whose path up until now has been paved and softened by others.

Yet each one of us has an awareness of a particular someone who has helped form this pattern of our lives. As the ripples created by our individual ships stretch farther and farther, one person will not be remembered by the Class of '57.

Instead, this page is meant to honor all those people who, wittingly or unwittingly, have had a hand in shaping our destiny.



Foreword

"And now I know that we must lift the sail
And catch the winds of destiny
Wherever they drive the boat.
To put meaning in one's life may end in madness,
But life without meaning is the torture
Of restlessness and vague desire--"

Edgar Lee Masters

For twelve years graduating from high school has been the goal on our horizon. Upon nearing this goal, life has taken on new meaning with new goals. To anchor here is safe but meaningless.

Bright stars, stirring winds beckon. With timid courage we embark once more. But we move slowly into deeper, unpredictable seas, bound for distant and varied ports. No longer can we cling to familiar buoys. No longer will the gentle breezes that caressed the sails of our younger days prevail on our new course.

Excited and frightened by the destiny ahead, we push our boats on. Our crafts are small, wobbly for the new venture. Yet, with bright hope and a shaky independence we reach out to "lift our sails" to conquer new worlds and cross new horizons.

STANDING: Mr. Edward Rubel, Mr. Edgar McLaughlin, Mr. Richard Miller, Mr. George Lortscher-Clerk, Mr. Harlan Knickerbocker, Mr. Herbert Bettinger. SEATED: Mr. Lyman Welch, Mr. Frederick Cummings, Mrs. Wyatt Brummitt-President.

The Board remains that mysterious body whose work is felt but never soon. They plan the future of the growing Pittsford school system - and at present the elementary school building is paramount. Many problems face this group of citizens in their unselfish service to the community.

"Say, 'ahh'! You have grown a half inch! Give this to your homeroom teacher." Dr. Allen who peered down our throats and Mrs. Price who "weighed us in" each September are both respected and admired guardians of our welfare.

Dear Class of 1957:

Everyone associated with your class will derive much informative enjoyment from this fine yearbook. Not only is it an excellent documentation of school affairs, but it is also symbolic of your high level of achievement at this school.

All schools are dedicated to the training of individuals and to increasing the maturity of these individuals for full participation in any society. Certainly, the production of this publication as a co-operative venture shows unique individual ability and its harmonious development into effective group performance.

In all of your endeavors we have been proud of the efficient manner in which obligations have been fulfilled. Space does not permit the recounting of the many achievements and distinctions shared by members of the Class of '57. Academic honors and exemplary performances in athletics, music, class activities, and service groups are but a few of the highlights which others in the student body will long remember.

"LIFT YOUR SAILS" -- and continue in the fine traditions you have established during these important years. We will watch with interest your future progress.

It is more than pleasurable for me to join the students and members of the faculty in extending congratulations and good wishes. -- You will surely -- "CATCH THE WINDS OF DESTINY."

Very sincerely,
Herbert C. Bettinger

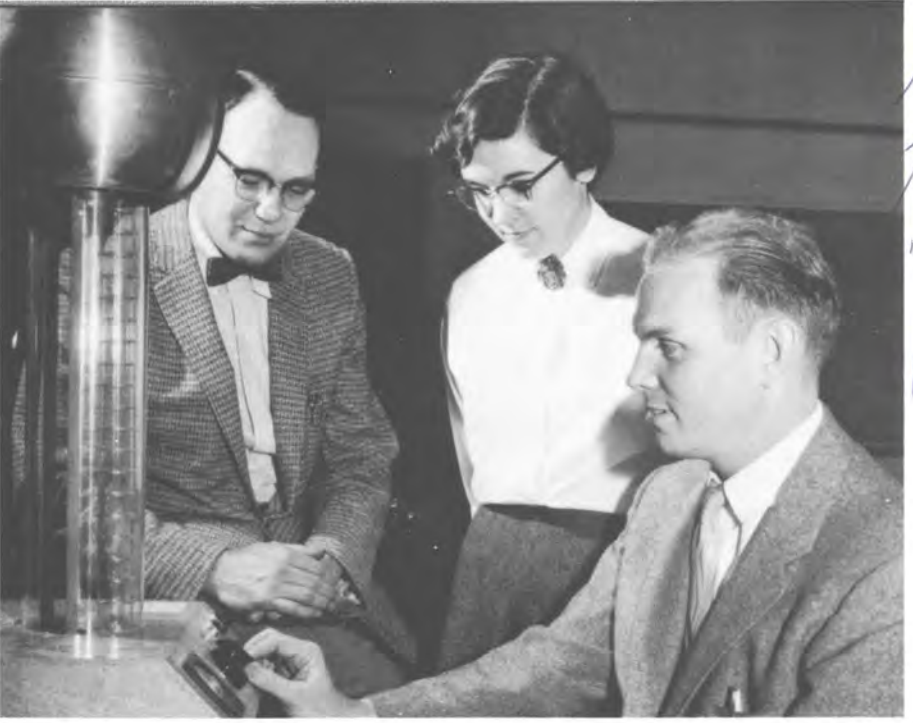
Mr. Hall is a very busy man. Making out schedule cards, sending in college applications, giving I.Q. tests, and extolling the merits of a Pontiac leave him little time for leisure.



To those who possess an insatiable curiosity, science affords inexhaustible fascination. Even to those who are of a less probing nature, science gives a general understanding of nature's laws.

The field of English is puzzling because its realm is undefinable. It's not prose; it's not poetry; it's not grammar; it's not television; it's not the newspaper; it's not the latest activity of the U.N. It's none of these--but all of these.

No subject like math offers so great a challenge to the man whc strives to achieve perfection; so great a pleasure to the man who thinks clearly; so great a source of torment to the man who does neither.

History is comparable to a jig-saw puzzle. At first it is a series of unrelated facts and dates to be memorized. But eventually these facts and dates coagulate and form patterns which, in turn, give the student a clearer view of the present.

SENIORS

Advisors

The senior year has been a full one. "S.S. Class of 1957" has weathered it, but not without the brainstorms of Miss Enes Novelli and the level-headedness of Mr. Alan Prudom. We thank our advisors for their guidance and candid criticism.

Officers

President	Bud Miller
Vice-President	Bill King
Secretary	Carol Hopkins
Treasurer	Ned Gramlich

From the high-pressured magazine campaign to our experiment-in-living-together in Washington, these four Seniors have proven seaworthy in leading their ship through a year of fun and work.

Taizo Ogihara, Susan DeLaney, and Walter Riemer.

Teen-Age Diplomats

These three have courageously "lifted their sails" and crossed the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans to make real the motto of the American Field Service-"Walk together, talk together, o ye peoples of the earth; then and only then shall ye have peace."

For Susan, her summer "living" venture took her into the homes of the Raymond Perees and the August Praets who live on the outskirts of Brussels, Belgium.

Taizo and Walter learned about life in America with the Gramlichs and Holtzes respectively.

They give us their impressions:

Dear Everybody,

The long, winding line to the cafeteria, the cheerleaders' yell, the sense of humor of American teachers, the slang-these things shall remain in my heart.

I like especially the American humor. It is very interesting to compare it with the reverent mood of the people in church.

Oh, boy! America is really a large country, seems always moving. People are tough and kind. I like America.

When you're visiting Japan, let me know. At that time I will teach you many slangs.

So long,
Taizo Ogihara

Dear Friends,

After many months in which I shared school events, sports, tests, and many other things with you, I go back with fine impressions of this country. Besides things like the valuable "take-it-easy" principle, I have acquired other American things like a fondness for baseball (I'm sorry now it is not played in Austria) and your language. Many thanks to you.

There is one thing which I want to tell you particularly: when I once went 250 miles away from Pittsford to another place in New York State, I became conscious of how wonderful it must be to be a citizen of a large, united nation. If I had traveled 250 miles from Vienna in any direction, I should have landed in another country. And here I could go ten times as far and one would still hear the same language, and be among the same people, the same nation.

I hope I'll see many of you again--perhaps some of you will come to Eugope one day. Perhaps I'll have an opportunity to come back to this cou try again. Until then I'll simply look at the pictures in this book to remind me of this year with you.

S. S. Pittsford

Log 1944-1957 Remarks

0000 to 0700

Ingenuous infants, pigeon-toed and frightful, crept stealthily into their blanket-rolls to spend half of their half-day, sleeping. This was only temporary. A year later Buddy Miller crashed through a stack of orange crates breaking down the early school symbol of punishment, and releasing about thirty minds from inhibition. Since then, Charlie Corby's indispensable boondoggle has become inextricably tangled in Carol Zornow's pigtails. Gail Dennis, alias Juliette Lowe, spent most of her time evading snowballs on trips to the Girl Scout office. And while the countenance of Carolyn Day shone from every worthy wallet, her initials were indelibly engraved upon every palm. John Morgan's red box of raisins in his lunch was the envy of the class. Sandi Franklin's busy pen labored incessantly to complete our Pulitzer Prize play-- theme: Snowball Fights-Crime and Punishment.

Our girl-boy relationship developed rapidly with the Initial Game, and Ned Gramlich's question, "Mr. Walters, sir, if all the Spartan men are at war, how can there be any children?" received an enlightening reply, "They took vacations." On that note Carol Hopkins landed with a resounding thud as she led Miss Howard's homeroom in a cheer for Johnny Sens.

As new members to the Junior-Senior high school, the class was introduced to Frank McConnell's newest game "Pinchy-Winchy." The new science teacher, Mr. Saporito, gave every one blood tests, ably assisted by his star pupil, Bill King. The example set by the upperclassmen caused Jon Hicks and Anita Hohenberger to be severely reprimanded for spooning at one of the dances. Mike Garvey's reply to the reproving teacher was, "I bet you wish you could do it too."

7th and 8th grade basketball games shaped vigorous athletes and vociferous but embarrassed cheerleaders. Susie Miller's red and white stripes betrayed that she was celebrating Christmas early that year. Meanwhile, Charlie Yole plummeted down snowcapped mountains becoming the nucleus of the ski team for the next four years.

Money really began to roll into the class treasury at the sophomore-freshman party. Soon afterward the class of 1957 sponsored the first freshman dance at Pittsford. Through the cherry blossom trees was visible the perennial refreshment committee--Carol Miller, Joyce Silco and Jane Pfromer.

Academically we stammered and stuttered trying to impress Mr. Carlson with our ability to deliver impromptu speeches.

1000 to 1100

Mr. Morrison explained our complicated emotional drives in terms of "our little man" while Bill Kirby in the back of the room blandly requested those who grew too hilarious to-"PLEASE, try to control your emotions."

Susan Perrine was not too successful in concealing her malice toward a talented Hilton player, and with her little baton she incapacitated him for the remainder of a basketball game.

Sandy Reed found that emotions did not always paint true pictures. Her loves were all faultless until they succummed to her wiles, then they became intolerable nuisances.

1100 to 1200

Miss Novelli!!!

Bimbi Barnum came to class with one eye bloodshot because her over-critical boss at the five and dime gave her nightmares. The Senior Ball proved torturing to Glenn Pribus who later discovered that he had been dancing on a broken leg.

Our anticipated Sadie Hawkin's record dance turned into a clamoring success when Jack Nunn's band just happened to drop by. All the fish in the sea couldn't entice people to purchase their tickets before the tide came in, but because of our charmed lives, the Junior Class's Fish Fry was a sizzling success and for weeks pie tins and dish clothes rattled around Room 201. Porter Sweet acquired the most fascinating Hupmobile, exceedingly valuable to some Student Council election campaigners. Perhaps the class's most outstanding triumph was the Gary Morrison-directed "Love is Eternal." The talent scout would have whisked Jane Crocker away to Hollywood but for his uncontrollable tears of sympathy for Patty O'Brien who was about to lose her son.

We sponged off the Senior Class at the Junior-Senior Banquet as we gorged ourselves on roast duck.

The consensus of opinion drawn from watching Margaret Barr's jitterbugging demonstration at the Junior Prom was that she and Elvis Presley would make a charming couple.

1200 to 0000--The year of Bob Beswick, Alan St. George and Dave Held.

Susan Delaney returned from Europe well schooled in French Curves. Al Farnum bled and bandaged the town with magazines. Hostile in English class, agreeable in Student Council, Brenda Long and Ann Dowling became famous for their debates. Gail Switzer spent quiet week-ends teaching Sunday School. As a result of the Senior Play, Paul Traina's boiling point became the subject for a physics class discussion. Bob Knowlton still feels like a "soggy sponge of hypocrisy" and Marylyn Davis still interrogates, "but where will I go?" Jeff Palmer's research paper on the Suez crisis was probably the most expensive on record, and Art Sisca discovered his right to evade Miss Novelli's questions by standing on the fifth amendment.

One of Rindy Northrop's clever schemes was the purposely miscast yearbook assembly. Robin Rickhoff was angelic with a removeable halo. And Confucious say, "Taizo Ogihara will become most outstanding steeple jack in whole wide world." It's hard to tell exactly how much civics Harold Benham learned with his record smashing "I don't know, Miss Butts." Anita Hohenberger, radiant as Queen of the Senior Ball, was escorted by Kingly Ned Gramlich to the royal throne.

Barbara Roach learned to lace shoes in kindergarten; but not until her Senior year did this knowledge become rewarding. With a half year of typing under his belt, Nimble Fingers Nellis was still unable to type "Nwo si tee teme fro all gooooood mon two cum two do aed of theirer cwontree."

Miss Novelli, having been in Europe on previous occasions, was shocked that Walter Riemer was not acquainted with "pinching". Todd Smith found, for their size, axle keys are the most difficult parts to replace on his troublesome Ford. College Boards were taken with cool detachment by experienced Seniors scarred from their Junior attack-all, of course, except for Lynn Groet, under tension as a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition. And then Norma Sewell hastily explained to the Washington hotel detective that the reason she was throwing water-filled balloons out of the window was because she had joined the Volunteer Firemen. Then June-and having been sewn into her sheath, Lynn Lauterbach, after polishing off the squab under glass at the Junior-Senior Banquet, hastily retreated to the ladies' room to search for safety pins. Baccalaureate Service sobered us up in time to appreciate graduation.

And so you see----------

"One ship Sails East, one ship Sails West
By the self-same wind that blows.
. . . It isn't the gales, but the set of sails
Which determines the way she goes."

As undergraduates we just rolled along,

picking up a little spending money here and there and not getting in a kettle of fish.

As seniors we tried our hand at selling magazines and frantically battled our research papers,

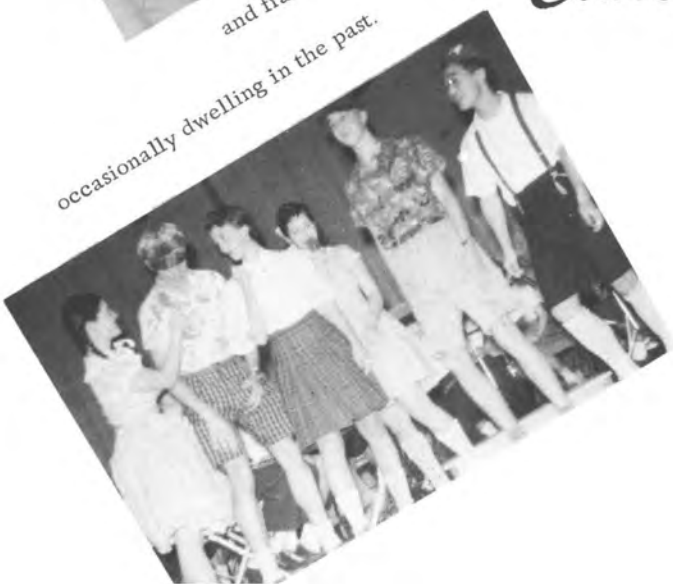
Pictorial Class History

but more often pondering the future.

occasionally dwelling in the past.



Relax!

Hold still!

Good evening.

My kids, I love 'em all.

Such careless housekeeping!

My own daughter to marry without consulting me.

They're fixin' to sell us!

presents
Irving Stone's

"Love Is Eternal"

Dramatized by Ruth Sergel
April 27, 1956 P.C.S. Auditorium

Shall we turn off the hose, Taddie?

Well, he's called me a damned fool more than once.

Mr. Douglas doesn't think me unwomanly.

"This is worth five pesos!"

"I'd rather trust a hungry fox!"

"The Gamut"

Instead of the conventional three-act play, the Class of '57 put on a trilogy entitled "The Gamut". This novel production consisted of a suspenseful tragedy, "The Valiant"; alively comedy, "Sunday Costs Five Pesos"; and the philosophical second act of Thornton Wilder's immortal play, "Our Town".

To Mr. Morrison we are eternally indebted.

"I suppose there's nothing to cry about."

"Frank, people are made to live two-by-two."

"I guess new friends aren't any better than the old ones."

"Christmas Castle"

They came laden with gifts.

They were received by the king's ministers.

They drank of enchanting wines.

They danced in the royal ballroom.

They paid homage to the King and Queen.

They joined in the grand march.

And they whisked their ladies off into the night.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Class of 1957, citizens of the State of New York and now residing in the City of Pittsford, at Pittsford Central School, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, and being free from duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence of any person, but considering the uncertainty of our earthly existence and desiring to dispose of all our earthly affairs while in health and strength, do hereby make, publish, and declare the following to be our last will and testament.

Bimbi Barnum leaves her Sparkling Burgundy for New Year's Eve 1967.
Margaret Barr leaves ping pong to Lynn Groet's cellar.
Harold Benham leaves at 10 of 8 to catch the quarter of 8 bus.
Bob Beswick leaves John Malafronte lonely and friendless.
Charlie Corby will return daily to the typing room for his lunch money.
Jane Crocker leaves that "little green thing" to Mr. Clark.
Marylyn Davis leaves her wide-eyed innocence to Betty Dunn.
Carolyn Day wishes she could leave a private "John" for older girls only.
Susan DeLaney leaves . . . if she gets ready on time.
Gail Dennis wills her sports participation to Myrna Millard.
Ann Dowling leaves Eleanor Roosevelt to the loving care of Jim Craib.
Al Farnam wills his "taxi service" to the junior boy with time on his hands and a car in his garage.
Sandi Franklin leaves to find out what's under her bed.
Mike Garvey leaves Mrs. Price and Mr. Prudom the right to attend school at their own convenience.
Ned Gramlich leaves in search of a college that can teach him how to run up and down stairs.
Lynn Groet leaves a bottle of peroxide and case of coke to the junior girl with the yen to give a "hen party."
David Held leaves the first volume of "Feminine Friends in the New School" to the library.
Jon Hicks leaves his midnight rides in the "Blue Julie" to Paul Revere.
Anita Hohenberger would leave her tiddy muff but she may need it again.
Carol Hopkins leaves Gerry DeRooy without a saddle-bag.
Bill King leaves in a sneeze.
Bill Kirby leaves the Eskimos, the international situation, and the electron theory for further Perusal.
Bob Knowlton leaves a lock of hair and a pack of gum to Miss Novelli.
Lynne Lauterbach leaves Sally Traub the right to be the only girl in her class who doesn't have to bleach her hair.
Brenda Long leaves everyone in doubt.
Frank McConnell leaves to find out what's behind the "Green Door."
Bud Miller leaves a broken record of "Charlie, My Boy" to Coach Miller.
Carol Miller leaves her baritone sax to any girl who can handle it.
Susie Miller would like to leave something sweet and demure BUT . .
John Morgan leaves his efficiency to Valerie Shea.
Paul Nellis leaves Mr. Prudom destitute without the latest Chevie news.
Rindy Northrop leaves a broken Spode cup to the cafeteria staff.
Pat O'Brien leaves a host of problems to future newspaper editors.
Taizo Ogihara likes Pittsford so well he isn't sure he'll leave.
Jeff Palmer leaves the longest and most expensive research paper on record.
Susan Perrine leaves her ready smile to Marie Morabito.
Janie Pfromer leaves her slumber parties to those who like to sleep?
Glenn Pribus leaves everything but Lynn.
Sandy Reed bequeaths her hair brush to any needy junior (boy or girl).
Walter Riemer leaves a pair of skis, a piano, and a perfect accent to be remembered by.
Robin Rickhoff leaves her entire repertoire of jokes to Linda Erskine.
Barbara Roach leaves her early morning "Hello" still echoing in the little room next to Mr. Prudom's room.
Norma Sewell leaves a law eliminating all things in life but the forbidden things.
Joyce Silco leaves to join the national chapter of the E.G.G.A.
Art Sisca leaves one used Ford spark plug to Roy Campbell.
Todd Smith leaves the hours between 9 P.M. and 5 A.M. to Jim Davis.
Alan St. George leaves. Wish you'd come sooner, Alan!
Porter Sweet would leave his car, but who could drive it?
Gail Switzer leaves her accumulation of fan-clubs to her sister.
Paul Traina leaves his collection of inappropriate remarks to Bill Heuer.
Charlie Yole leaves his "childish ways" to Mr. Prudom to disperse of as he sees fit.
Carol Zornow leaves her gym class remarks in the Girls' Locker Room, and there they'd better stay!
To next year's Seniors we leave the thrill of being "Big Shots."
To Mr. Bettinger we leave everything else. We know he can use it!

We do appoint the Class of '58 as executor of this will, hereby revoking all former wills made by us at any time, and in witness thereof, we here unto affix our names in this year of our graduation, 1957 A.D.

ACTIVITIES

Student Council

1956-57

President--Brenda Long

Secretary--Joan Ramsdale

Vice-President--Ann Dowling

Treasurer--Jackie Ross

The Student Council, composed of elected representatives from all classes, met weekly to solve the school problems. Under the leadership of its four girl officers this year's Council sponsored a literary and art contest, established an athletic review board, and investigated the difficulties of many of the school's clubs.

National Honor Society

Scholarship, leadership, service, and character -- these are the necessary qualifications for membership to the National Honor Society. Excitement is high among the juniors at initiation time. The hushed suspense is broken only by the silent tapping as the candles burn symbolically.

Junior Town Meeting

As part of its yearly program the National Honor Society prepared a discussion for the WHEC Junior Town Meeting of the Air. The topic discussed was: Should we expand our current foreign economic aid policy? Presenting facts and opinions were Susie Miller, Brenda Long, Ned Gramlich, and Bill Kirby.

Basketball

All winter the gymnasium echoed to the pitter-patter of size 12 sneakers and the cries of "Come on, Ref! Open your eyes!" But the long practices, the sweat, and the towel-fight scars have their compensations. Only a basketball player knows the excitement of a cheering grandstand and the satisfaction of scoring an important point.

It's an honor to represent Pittsford in its major sport.

Dear !! Bill, (Bonnie is watching me so I've got to make this good!) This year you've certainly made a name for yourself in sports and socially.

J. V. Cheerleaders

King, Tucker (Capt.), Wahl, Traub, Morabito, Burger.

Cheerleading means excitement. It means popularity. The girl who becomes a cheerleader has the right to wear a white uniform and ride on the "team bus." But every honor demands a price -- time, a hoarse voice, the ability to force a smile when losing. The cheerleading squad is the glamorous feminine counterpart of the basketball team. It's a girl's way of asserting that she "has made it."

Girls' Leaders Club

Boys' Leaders Corps.

Keep Bonnie, she's nice, she's also still watching me.
Robin

The leaders clubs are composed of girls and boys with interest and ability in athletics. Those who belong to this "honor society" must be capable of taking over gym classes, directing intramurals, and teaching athletic skills to younger children.

Gaining a sense of responsibility and the satisfaction of serving give these "leaders" a rewarding experience.

STANDING: Mason, Gramlich (Pres.), Benham, Corby, Mr. Miller. KNEELING: Dowling, Holtz (Sec.-Treas.), King, Morgan. (Coene).

A resounding meeting between hockey stick and ball in the crisp autumn air; a swish as a ball slides through a mesh hoop; the pounding of racing feet along the base path - these sounds are characteristic of GAA in their respective seasons. But the spirit of the group is not seasonal. The Friday games are open to all interested girls in the high school. Lowly freshmen and mighty seniors are members of the sam team. Under the simple disguise of fun, cooperation and skills and new friendships are formed.

The Hockey Team, captained by Sandi Franklin, compiled a record of four wins, five losses, and one tie. While competing in the annual Finger Lakes Hockey Association Sportsday at Harley, Susan DeLaney, Carol Hopkins, Gail Dennis, and Valerie Shea of the Varsity Team were selected as sectional all-stars.

The Pittsford gym was the scene of the annual basketball sportsday. Six area schools participated. The Pittsford girls brought their record to two wins, one loss and one tie. Gail Dennis and Carol Hopkins were chosen members of an all-star team which played against the women physical education teachers.

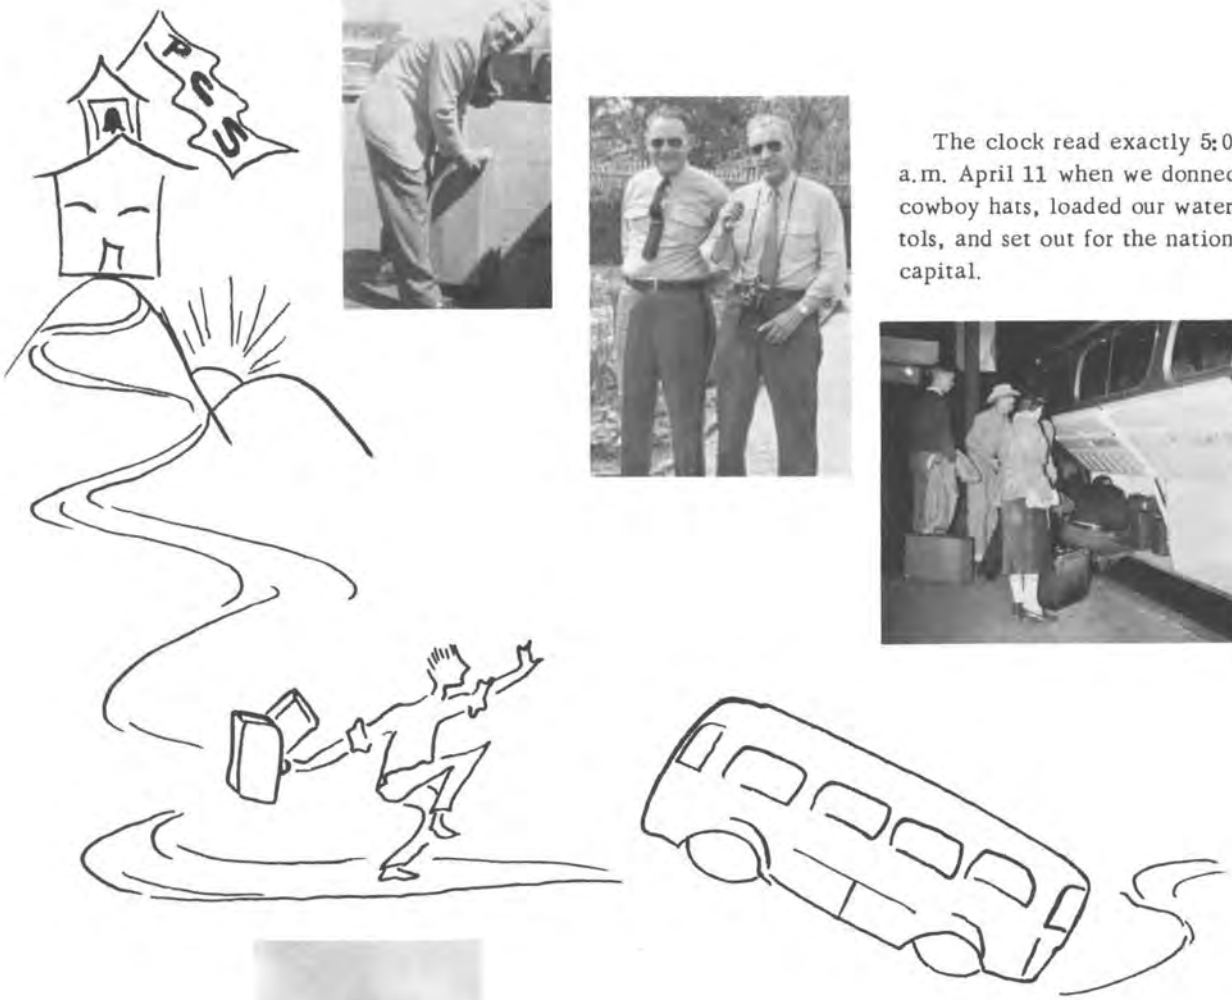
SUPPLEMENT



The clock read exactly 5:04 a.m. April 11 when we donned our cowboy hats, loaded our water pistols, and set out for the nation's capital.

Washington Trip

We were determined to make the most of our stay in Washington and we certainly did. Every night we changed the quiet, orderly bedrooms of the Hotel Raleigh to a soggy battleground. But while some stirred up excitement, others calmly made reparation -- prompted by Mr. Prudom.

Although our bleary and bloodshot eyes probably missed some of the beauty, we shall always treasure the memories of our Washington trip. It was a perfect way to spend our class savings.

STANDING: Lady (Mgr.), Coene, King, Holtz, Gramlich, Mr. Miller, Hicks, Higgins, Battazzo, Ruffner, Smith (Mgr.). KNEELING: Scheur, J. Snyder, Traina, Ellis, Teiper, Begg, Foreman.

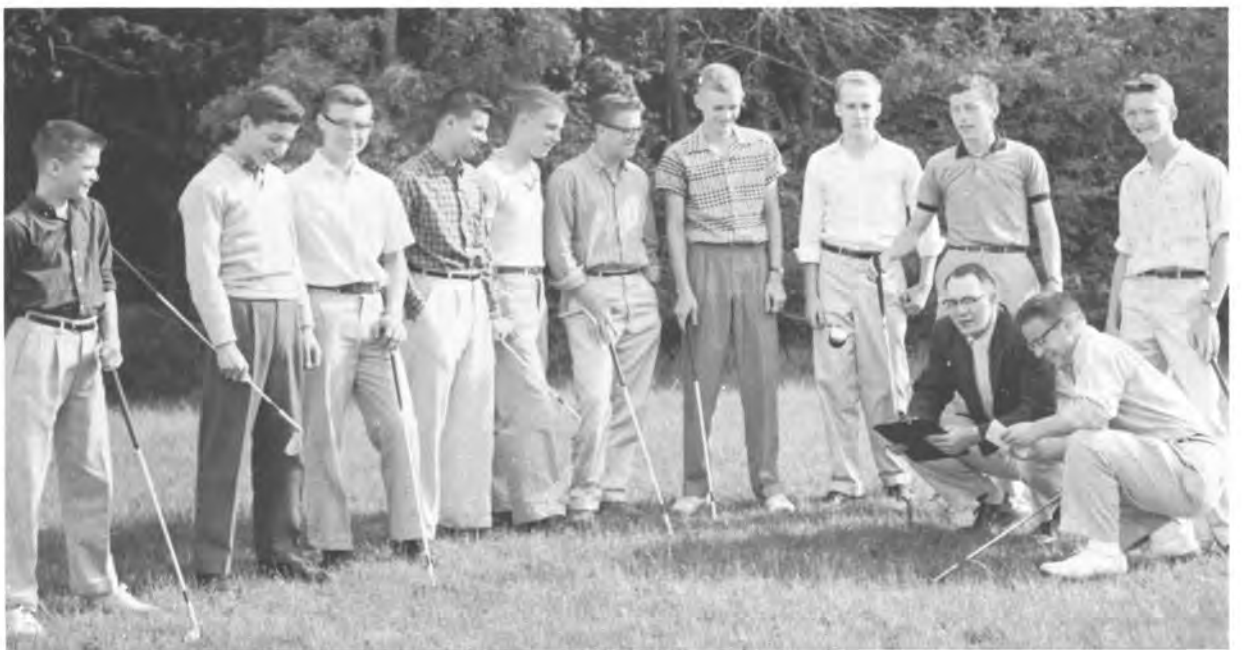
Whether it be an eighty-year-old grandma winning a TV jackpot or a four-year-old kid getting a bat and glove for his birthday, everybody is attracted to baseball. But unfortunately Pittsford bats weren't as magically attracted to opposing pitches. The team, composed mostly of freshmen, didn't fare too well this spring but the future outlook is good.

Baseball Team

Golf Team

The game of golf requires patience, coordination, and dishonesty. Mr. Prudom's boys combined the three very well, finishing the season with a seven won - four lost record.

Foster, A. Heuer, Hazen, Commisso, Morgan, Traub, Corby, Pembroke, B. Heuer, Mr. Prudom, Craib, Wright.



STANDING: Mr. Carlson, Benham, McLaughlin, Knowlton, Grinnell, Howe, Harper, Ramsey, Rubel, Garvey, McConnell. JUMPING: Yole. KNEELING: Kempster, Parker, Schmitt, Gridley, Hazen, Hartsig, Mason, DeSerio, Ogihara, Lehman.

Although track is a sport of individual skills, it does teach a strong sense of team loyalty. This year Yole, Benham, and Lehman contributed outstanding performances, but the determination of all team members was the main reason for the successful season.

Track Team Athletic Banquet

At the Athletic Banquet the same boys who donate gallons of sweat to the athletic field sit like kings, eating roast beef and stuffing their pockets with chenille letters. This year Sandi Franklin and Ned Gramlich won the Babe Ruth Sportsmanship Award, and Jon Hicks and Ned Gramlich, the Ideal Teammate Award.

Given special recognition at the Banquet were two Pittsford athletes who won individual honors: Glenn Pribus who was the first to enter the Class B Swimming Sectionals for Pittsford and Harold Benham who captured the County Singles Bowling Title.

Graduation week was paradoxical. Parties celebrating the fact that "we're out" were followed by sober moments when we regretted our high school years were behind us.

The Baccalaureate Service on Sunday, June 23rd and Commencement on the 24th furnished the serious moments.

Baccalaureate was conducted by the Reverend Richard Kesel in the Presbyterian Church.

The Commencement Exercises were impressive in their simplicity. Before Mrs. Wyatt Brummitt presented the diplomas, Mr. Herbert Bettinger announced the following scholastic awards for the past year:

The Sophomore Award of fountain pens given by the Class of 1913 to Lynne Patterson and Peter Hamilton.

The Elmira Key awarded by the Elmira College Club of Rochester to Valerie Shea.

A certificate and pin presented by the Rayson-Miller Post Auxiliary to Jennifer Baltzer and Peter Stuewe for high honors in American History and citizenship.

A savings bond awarded by the Security Trust Co. of Pittsford to Susan DeLaney for proficiency in English.

Presented to Sandi Franklin and Ned Gramlich for outstanding citizenship were $10.00 awards by the Women's Republican Club and Women's Roosevelt Club respectively.

An award of $35.00 to the valedictorian, Susan DeLaney, and $25.00 to the salutatorian, Susan Miller, given by the P.T.A.

The Business and Professional Women's Club award of $20.00 to an outstanding student in the Commercial Department presented to Jane Pfromer.

The Rotary Award of $50.00 and a medal given to Brenda Long for scholarship, citizenship, extra-curricular activities, and progress.

The annual award of the Fire Department Auxiliary in the form of $400.00 presented to Joyce Silco.

Some awards made previously:

Empire Boys' State at Colgate: Bill Harper and Jack Kempster.

Empire Girls' State at Skidmore: Valerie Shea.

Winner of the American Field Service Summer Program Scholarship: Jackie Ross.

The Harvard University Prize Book: Bill Harper.

The Bausch and Lomb Science Medal: Bill Kirby.

Graduation

Dr. Lloyd Elliott, Principal Speaker; Susan DeLaney, Valedictorian; Mrs. Wyatt Brummitt, President, Board of Education; Susan Miller, Salutatorian; Mr. Herbert Bettinger, Supervising Principal.

This spring some Juniors made up their minds to play, while others fished for . . .

dishes of course.

And teasing at the Junior-Senior Banquet provided fun for all.

Ah, spring is "Almost Paradise."
